

As we have already told you, your body is made of millions of clever and interesting human cells. But here is a fact that may very well surprise you.

Some parts of your body are covered with cells that are not human at all!

Although you are made of 100 million million human cells, there are about 1000 million million bacteria and yeast cells living in and on your body.